Easing Toward Truth

You've heard the term "painting yourself into a corner". Stuck, and now how to get out. This is what the establishment has done -pretending that Planet X does not exist and is not looming closer every day. How do you pretend that life will go on as it does today while at the same time getting the public to seriously prepare for massive earthquakes, lack of food in the pantry, and the need to migrate to safety? If you're the CDC, a US government agency in charge of investigating and resolving disease outbreaks, you joke around! It's not Planet X and its entourage of moons and debris causing starvation and cannibalism, its zombies!

Social Media: Preparedness 101: Zombie Apocalypse

May 16, 2011

http://emergency.cdc.gov/socialmedia/zombies\_blog.asp

There are all kinds of emergencies out there that we can prepare for. Take a zombie apocalypse for example. You may laugh now, but when it happens you'll be happy you read this, and hey, maybe you'll even learn a thing or two about how to prepare for a real emergency. So what do you need to do before zombies or hurricanes or pandemics for example, actually happen? First of all, you should have an emergency kit in your house.

ZetaTalk Prediction 12/14/2002: The next highest die-off will be in heavily populated areas where feeding the survivors simply cannot be done. Anyone crawling from NYC will find themselves in suburbs, endless suburbs, with no expertise in gathering or growing food. Mexico City is likewise so afflicted, in the numbers it houses that cannot possible escape and dilute their numbers into the countryside, so as to feed themselves. The only food available will be each other, fellow survivors.

And what about the great tsunami predicted by the Zetas to head toward Europe when the north Atlantic splits open, the tsunami the Zetas have predicted will be 200 feet high when it hits Britain and 100 feet high as it passes London and Denmark. This scenario is part of the 7 of 10 scenarios, which is a prediction that emerged within the body of ZetaTalk in late 2009. Suddenly the UK is talking about great floods that could hit Britain's cities, and conducting civil defense exercises to prepare. Ah, but the cause is not the plate movement inflicted on the Earth by the daily Earth wobble, a result of the near presence of Planet X. The cause is a hypothetical 100 foot tall flood caused by high tides and a North Sea storm. Historically the worst flood to hit London was only 18.4 feet high, not the 100 foot tall tsunami Britain is now, apparently, preparing to meet. Sounds like they've been reading ZetaTalk!

Our Future Under Water: how Britain's Cities Could be Devastated by Flood Water
March 9, 2011

<http://www.dailymail.co.uk/sciencetech/article-1363703/Our-future-water>

These dramatic images show how floods could devastate major cities across Britain leaving thousands of homes underwater if no flood defences were put in place. The centres of London, Birmingham, Cardiff and Liverpool would be completely submerged with properties wrecked and businesses shutdown in the event of major flooding. Extraordinary photographs of the devastation flooding could cause were released by the Environment Agency today to warn of the dangers of natural disasters. Major rehearsals for a possible disaster are to begin involving 10,000 people as Government tests how they, the emergency services and communities will respond.

ZetaTalk Prediction 8/28/2010: In that the European tsunami is anticipated to be half the height of the pole shift tides, and washing through the English Channel at a height of 100 feet or more, what can be anticipated at this time for the lowlands of England and the eastern coastline along the channel. Rushing water, under force and moving rapidly, not only floods, it bites. Where the European tsunami might not rush all the way into the lowlands in England's interior it will certainly rush into any lowlands along the eastern seaboard and force up the Thames River to roil London's docks.

Then there's the religious elite, who have favored a narrow view of the Universe for centuries. For those who have thumped the Bible all their lives, and firmly believe in the rapture when the End of Days arrives, the only way to avoid the awful truth is to run away. Harold Camping received international media attention for his latest rapture day prediction, which came and passed on May 21, 2011 with Harold Camping left behind. Why did Camping get such press coverage? Perhaps the real message is that there is no escape, and one must prepare! Learn to garden, keep chickens and goats, and head for the hills when the time comes.

Christian Movement Preparing for End of Days
May 21, 2011

http://news.yahoo.com/s/ap/20110521/ap\_on\_re\_us/us\_apocalypse\_saturday

Across the globe, followers of a California preacher's long-publicized message that Judgment Day would arrive Saturday turned to the Bible, the book they believe predicts Earth's destruction on May 21. The doomsday message has been sent far and wide via broadcasts and web sites by Harold Camping, an 89-year-old retired civil engineer who has built a multi-million-dollar nonprofit ministry based on his apocalyptic prediction. Some 200 million people will be saved, Camping preaches, and those left behind will die in earthquakes, plagues, and other calamities until Earth is consumed by a fireball on October 21.

ZetaTalk Explanation 10/15/1996: If the message was heard by a Christian fundamentalist while reading the Bible, then those to be saved during Armageddon were Christians. If the message was heard by humanitarian New Agers reading and interpreting ancient prophecies, then clearly this rescue at the dawn of a new age was the rescue of all of mankind by the wisdom and intervention of friendly aliens. At no time was the listener left behind.

Then there is NASA and the astronomical community, threatened with prosecution if they break the national security oath that requires them to deny the truth about Planet X having arrived in the vicinity in 2003. NASA is terrified they will be the scapegoat when the truth is revealed, as how could they not have known? Can they get out of the corner they've painted themselves into? A recent article, that burst onto the stage with great fanfare - published in National Geographic, Time magazine, scientific sites such as PhysOrg and elsewhere - explained that a planetary body like the Zeta description of Planet X can and does exist out there.

Lonely Rogue Worlds Surprisingly Outnumber Planets with Suns

May 18, 2011

<http://www.space.com/11699-rogue-alien-planets-milky-common.html>

Astronomers have discovered a whole new class of alien planet: a vast population of Jupiter-mass worlds that float through space without any discernible host star. While some of these exoplanets could potentially be orbiting a star from very far away, the majority of them most likely have no parent star at all. Astronomers have long predicted the existence of free-flying "rogue alien planets." But their apparent huge numbers may surprise many researchers, and could force some to rethink how the planets came to be.

Without even mentioning the ZetaTalk site, they aligned remarkably with the facts as the Zetas have long presented them.

1. ZetaTalk has always asserted that Planet X is a life bearing cross between a planet and a star, a smoldering brown dwarf which NASA has always stated must be huge and gaseous like Jupiter. Now NASA is stating that a "hot Neptune" can exist and might even bear life.
2. ZetaTalk has always stated Planet X is 23 times the mass of Earth and can bear life because it emits light as well as heat, and thus acts as its own Sun. NASA is now conceding that a "hot Neptune" approximately 21.4 times the mass of Earth could be a life bearing planet, the only category for a life bearing planet on their chart besides the Earth.
3. I, Nancy, have always called Planet X a "rogue planet" on the Troubled Times website, a companion to ZetaTalk, and now NASA has adopted this term to describe these traveling bodies they have discovered are so very common in the Universe. They almost seem to be saying "Zetas Right Again!"

ZetaTalk Comment 5/21/2011: A "smoldering brown dwarf", our term for Planet X, brought ridicule, as per NASA a brown dwarf could only be gaseous and as large or larger than Jupiter. A hybrid between a planet and such a failed star could not exist, and thus NASA had no term for such a thing. Meanwhile increasing evidence available to the public that Planet X is right there next to the Sun is creating great anxiety at NASA. It is showing up on SOHO and Stereo images and creating signs in the sky worldwide. Could they somehow leap ahead of their decades of a cover-up with dramatic announcements, once again? The great fanfare that the announcement of what is termed "rogue planets" has received is no accident, as NASA hopes to suddenly discover that one is the elephant in the room, there all along creating magnetic problems for planet Earth and causing the increase in earthquakes and plate movements.

SOHO/Stereo Evidence

There it is, in plain sight! Planet X on SOHO and Stereo images. The Pole Shift ning regularly discusses these matters, and posted a few good examples recently. NASA has nowhere to hide! They airbrush out the evidence but their automatic programs are not adept enough to hide the edit lines or catch all appearances. Their choices are to take away the SOHO and Stereo offerings or live with this unexplained bold-faced evidence of the presence of Planet X and its Moon Swirls. The Zetas have explained that the airplane-like appearance is due to the long-exposure cameras. The Moon Swirls are moving, relative to the camera.

IMAGE: SOHO/Stereo Evidence

ZetaTalk Comment 10/16/2010: As is apparent from the appearance, the SOHO images are not a quick snap but somewhat of a long exposure. Of note is the leading point, which is either Planet X itself or the dominant moon in a Moon Swirl.

S America Grind

What plate boundary suffers the most during subduction? The part being pushed under another, subducted, or the part being pushed over another. In the case of the S American roll, it is clear that at present it is the part being pushed over, although sinking of the Caribbean Plate has begun. In Venezuela, in locations that align remarkably with the Caribbean Plate border and the N Andes Plate border, there are catastrophes such as crumpled roads and sinking and flooding.

The most affected sectors of the municipality of Sucre after the flooding of several homes, were the coastal towns of San Antonio, Boscan and the Port.

In Colombia the flooding which has devastated the country is due primarily to heaving river beds, which dam the drainage. This is so severe it is estimated that 2.2 million have been left homeless, 1,101 municipalities affected with a total of 605,000 homes destroyed. The land is being crumpled. The parts of Colombia affected are on the N Andes Plate, which per the Zetas is pushed along during the S American roll as though it were part of the larger S American Plate. This is mountain building.

<http://colombiareports.com/colombia-news/news/16343-bogota>

Colombia's capital Bogota has been cut off from a large part of the northeast of the country after a landslide destroyed a bridge connecting the capital with the city of Bucaramanga.

The Zetas have described the effects of the S American roll on Venezuela as a grinding action, and stated that mountain building has already begun in the N Andes.

ZetaTalk Prediction 10/16/2010: Those living along the border of S America and the hapless Caribbean Plate will experience a great moaning and grinding while the S American Plate glides over the Caribbean Plate, pushing it down with its weight as it does so.

ZetaTalk Statement 2/26/2011: The S American roll will not take place in an instant, from start to end, as is obvious from the preliminary movement already taking place. The region of the N Andes fault line is suffering mountain building.

Hong Kong Flooding

Hong Kong, on the South China coastline, is predicted by the Zetas to eventually lose 20 feet in elevation during the 7 of 10 scenarios, specifically during the sinking of the Sunda Plate tongue holding Indonesia. On May 23, 2011, with less than an inch of rain (.59" at most) regions on the outer islands experienced unusual flooding. When there is elevation loss, there is poor drainage, and this is one of first symptoms noticed. Has sinking in the Hong Kong region begun?

Alert on More Downpours as NT Areas Take Pounding

<http://www.chinanews.com/ga/2011/05-23/3059236.shtml>

Since the thunderstorm warning was issued early yesterday, more than 50 millimeters of rainfall were recorded over most of Hong Kong with some areas in the New Territories, especially Tai Po, Sai Kung and Yuen Long, experiencing more than 150mm. The Fire Services Department got reports of 19 cases of flooding. In Tai Po, the flooding was knee deep as a river channel overflowed near construction work.

ZetaTalk Prediction 11/27/2010: Hong Kong will be inundated by seawater during the 7 of 10 sinking of the plate tongue holding Indonesia, losing approximately 20 feet in elevation. Where much of Hong Kong is in the hills surrounding the city, it will nonetheless be devastated.

There have been other indications that the break point where the Sunda Plate holding Indonesia is bending down have affected the South China coastline. Sinkholes have sudden developed in Qujiang and Heyuan, up the coast from Hong Kong.
