Mercury UFO

For the first time ever, Moon Swirls of Planet X hit the main stream press! They weren't called Moon Swirls, but during a recent CME the extra light behind the Moon Swirl illuminated it on the Stereo images, briefly. This appears to be the Checkmark Moon Swirl which has dual tubes coming from a central dominant moon of Planet X. The long tubes are clearly seen, briefly, and taken by those who discovered this on the Stereo images to be a mothership of sorts.

As can be clearly seen, the Moon Swirls brighten with the CME, showing this is reflected light.

Is this an Alien Spacecraft Parked Next to Mercury?

December 8, 2011

<http://www.dailymail.co.uk/sciencetech/article-2071099/Is-alien-spacecraft>

A gigantic object the size of a planet has appeared on astronomers' screens lurking near Mercury, with UFO hunters around the world wondering whether it's an alien ship. The object appears from nowhere in a sequence of images of a coronal ejection from the Sun, taken by a NASA telescope. As the flare races past Mercury, a huge round object appears next to it - but NASA scientists insist that the object is merely a result of the way the images are processed. The image from the telescope was analysed by the United States Naval Research Laboratory, with engineer Nathan Rich explaining that the 'object' is actually the image of Mercury from the previous day. Moving objects, like planets, are more difficult to remove.

Mysterious Planet-Sized Object Spotted Near Mercury

December 7, 2011

<http://news.yahoo.com/blogs/sideshow/mysterious-planet-sized-object>

Is a giant, cloaked spaceship orbiting around Mercury? That's been the speculation from some corners after a camera onboard NASA's Stereo spacecraft caught a wave of electronically charged material shooting out from the sun and hitting Mercury.

Giant 'Death Star' Spotted in Space

December 8, 2011

<http://www.thesun.co.uk/sol/homepage/news/3986191/Giant-Death-Star>

The round 'craft' is as big as a planet and appeared from nowhere in images captured by a NASA telescope. The Heliospheric Imager-1 telescope was taking pictures of a coronal ejection, a giant eruption, from the sun when the mysterious 'ship' turned up in a series of shots.

Per the Zetas, this was another failure by NASA, who did not anticipate what the illumination of a CME would do to the Moon Swirls and vast dust cloud swirling about between the Sun and the Earth.

ZetaTalk Comment 12/10/2011: NASA has been struggling with evidence of Planet X and its Moon Swirls and vast dust cloud appearing in SOHO and Stereo images since 2003, without success. When the Earth was blocked in its path by Planet X in December, 2003, the Earth then stalled in her orbit, NASA dealt with this by simulating the background of stars and planets in the images. They started out air brushing evidence of Planet X out of the images, programmed cut-and-past operations that showed obvious edit lines. When the Planet X complex came closer, wafting about so the location of objects was not certain from day to day, NASA dropped the effort entirely and just allowed the Winged Globe and the various Moon Swirls to appear on the images. No comment, was their response, or perhaps calling the individual moons "compression artifacts" when they showed up.

At present, what one sees on SOHO and Stereo images is a contrived star background, inserted planets passing to and fro, and real activity in the Sun. The Planet X complex is brushed out as much as possible, but mostly ignored. Now, as occurs during all solar cycles, we have arrived at the solar maximum, when an occasional CME might occur. This is insignificant except that sunlight reflecting off the dust cloud and the dust clinging to the Moon Swirls has yet another source of light - the CME itself.

When the CME envelopes an area, the airbrushing programs are turned away from this area, as activity in the Sun can be seen by amateurs and the images must correlate closely with what has been seen by amateurs. Thus illuminated by the CME, and not reduced by any attempt to airbrush the object away, a tube like cluster of Moons appears dramatically. The programs were not reinstated in time to eliminate this Moon Swirl reflecting light from the Sun and the fading CME, a NASA blooper. Since the pathetic attempt to explain the object, as Mercury itself lingering from a previous day, will hardly impress the common man, the suspicion that there are objects between the Earth and Sun has been planted in many minds. All to the good, and the media exposure just the start of such speculation.

There are other signs that this vast dust cloud is wafting in the region between the Sun and planet Earth. An amateur astronomer recording video of the Moon, Jupiter, and Venus during the month noted an odd waffling and wavering light pattern, explosions of light particularly from Venus. At other times, all was normal. What was happening?

On December 1 planet Venus was what it looks to be blinking, I got some videos from November 7 to the date when Venus happened to be unusual, and Jupiter and its moon were looking normal, but something was wrong with the planet Venus. The Full Moon on November 10 was showing an issue that didn't happen before on the Moon. This video is made from November 7 to December 1 in Houston Texas.

IMAGE: Venus Explosions

VIDEO: <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=SF1IOhqMrGc>

Per the Zetas, this was an issue of light rays being bent by the electrically charged dust cloud of Planet X, which wafts about between Planet X and the Earth. This and the Mercury UFO speculation have all occurred this past month. What will the next month bring?

ZetaTalk Comment 12/10/2011: To see Jupiter on November 17 you are looking away from that part of the sky where sunlight is streaming through the vast dust cloud of Planet X. Where Planet X is coming at the Earth in a retrograde orbit direction, from the right hand side, Jupiter is viewed toward the left. To see Venus on December 1 one looks to the west at dusk, thus looking directly through the dust cloud toward Planet X, the light thus distorted. To see the Full Moon on November 10 one must look directly east in the dead of night, again looking in the direction of the vast dust cloud of Planet X, which is wafting between the Earth and Moon. What you are seeing with this distortion, the wavering and waning light, is bending of light rays as they travel through the charged dust cloud!

Senate Bill 1867

A bill in the US Senate - Senate Bill 1867 - soon to move to the House for approval, has gone viral on the Internet. It virtually screams "Martial Law within the US". Most astonishing is that it was approved by Democrats and well as Republicans - bipartisan - and goes against the Constitution on many fronts.

The Entire United States is Now a War Zone

December 2, 2011

<http://www.activistpost.com/2011/12/entire-united-states-is-now-war-zone.html>

The horrendous bill that would turn all of America into a battlefield and subject American citizens to indefinite military detention without charge or trial has passed the Senate. S.1867, or the National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA) for the fiscal year of 2012, passed with a resounding 93-7 vote.

A careful look at the Senate bill shows there are no guarantees that this constitutes a Martial Law decree by Congress. All that would be required would be for the President to declare a group of citizens to qualify, and the US military could arrest and detain indefinitely, on US soil, without access to the court system. Where this differs from the current legal structure is that currently the President must declare a National Emergency to involve the US military in arrests of citizens on US soil. Removing the right to a speedy trial is not in accordance with the Constitution, nor is having the US military take action on US soil constitutional.

Martial Law

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Martial_law

The martial law concept in the U.S. is closely tied with the right of habeas corpus, which is in essence the right to a hearing on lawful imprisonment, or more broadly, the supervision of law enforcement by the judiciary. The ability to suspend habeas corpus is often equated with martial law. Article I, Section 9 of the U.S. Constitution states, "The Privilege of the Writ of Habeas Corpus shall not be suspended, unless when in Cases of Rebellion or Invasion the public Safety may require it." In United States law, martial law is limited by several court decisions that were handed down between the American Civil War and World War II. In 1878, Congress passed the Posse Comitatus Act, which forbids military involvement in domestic law enforcement without congressional approval.

Per the Zetas, the Senators are frantic for an alternate excuse to declare Martial Law. Since the cover-up over Planet X must remain in place, they can't openly state this is the reason for their panic. Anything but an admission, it seems!

ZetaTalk Explanation 12/10/2011: What comes across from the passage of Senate Bill 1867 is fear, palpable fear. What are they afraid of? Losing the US to home grown terrorists? And under what circumstance would this occur? Under what circumstance would the US be so overwhelmed by home grown terrorists that the US court system and federal agencies would not be able to deal with the issue? What has happened to cause the US Senate to be so gripped by fear that it, as a body, runs amuck of the Constitution? Clearly it is not an economic depression or the national debt, both of which have been long running and caused no more than argument in the Senate about jobs bills and lifting the debt ceiling.

The New Madrid scenario has the Senate, almost to a one, in a panic. They don't consider this hypothetical, they now consider this a pending reality. Europe, their ally, will be devastated but China, the sleeping giant, will not sustain a 7 of 10 disaster. Might China try to invade? Might the Mexican cartels attempt to overrun the southwest? Might US citizens refuse to pay taxes? Asked to explain themselves, the red faced Senators could not. What are they to say, that Planet X exists? That ZetaTalk is correct? That they are aware of the dangers and personally preparing but are denying the public information about the real threat? That they want the citizens to attend to their jobs, and if they attempt to prepare for a coming cataclysm instead, they will be arrested and detained indefinitely? What you are seeing here is a panic in the cover-up. This is just the tip of the iceberg, in what is coming.

Are there other signs that the US government is aware of the Zeta prediction accuracy? Obama recently issued Executive Order 13575, outlined in Issues 252 of this newsletter, which shows an intention of establishing rural survivor camps. And suddenly FEMA is issuing contracts to establish work camps for emergency management teams.

National Quick Response Team

November 16, 2011

<http://aptac-us.org/new/upload/File/RFI%20for%20KBR%2011-16-11.pdf>

The Continental US will be broken up into five regions as indicated in the map below Services will be required in each State within each region. The personnel on site to be covered by these services will depend on the size and scope of the recovery effort, but for estimating purposes the camp will range in size from 301 to 2,000 persons for up to 30 days in length.

ZetaTalk Comment 12/10/2011: Suddenly, and without explanation or apology, the US is openly preparing for disaster. This did not occur after the Katrina disaster, so is clearly not a reaction to recent events. If a preparation for a New Madrid disaster, which is vaguely predicted by officials for sometime in the next century or beyond, then why the sudden sense of urgency? The public is not noticing these efforts, as they are kept out of the mainstream press. But for those tracking such revealing plans and actions, the meaning is clear. The US government, FEMA, expects the New Madrid disaster to occurs soon, and is saying nothing to its citizenry about it!

Sunda Sinks / Australia Tilts

The 7 of 10 scenarios have a relationship between the sinking of the Sunda Plate and the steady tilting of the Indo-Australian Plate, whereby New Zealand and the eastern part of Australia rise while India plunges under the Himalayas. This has been steadily progressing since December 23, 2010 but the sinking of the Sunda Plate had not as yet completed. However, recently the pace picked up.

IMAGE: 7 of 10 Sequence

ZetaTalk Prediction 10/16/2010: The sequence of events is, thus a tipping Indo-Australia Plate with Indonesia sinking, a folding Pacific allowing S America to roll.

As with the start of the sequence last January, Australian again has the rivers on its eastern coastline in Queensland backwashing. This is, as was the case last January, termed flooding due to rain. This was detailed in Issue 222 of this newsletter when Queensland rivers backed up, flooding saltwater inland. Then again in Issue 226 of this newsletter as the trapped water rolled around like an inland sea until it escaped at Melbourne. Once again there is scarcely any rain, but the cover-up over the 7 of 10 process forces the media to ascribe the backwash to rain.

Rain Could Hurt Qld Flood Reconstruction

December 7, 2011

<http://news.smh.com.au/breaking-news-national/rain-could>

Heavy rains in the Darling Downs could undermine post-flood reconstruction efforts. Parts of southern Queensland were lashed by heavy rain, including some regions that had been affected by severe flooding in January. The Maranoa River, in the western Darling Downs region, reached major flood levels at Springfield and minor flood levels at Roma. Flood warnings remain in place for the Maranoa, Flinders and western Queensland rivers.

Flash Flooding Hits Roma Businesses

December 8, 2011

<http://www.couriermail.com.au/news/queensland/flash-flooding-hits-roma>

Residents in Roma have spent the morning hosing down footpaths and cleaning shops following flash flooding in the southwest Queensland town overnight. The major flood level is six metres and we're predicting it to reach seven-and-a-half metres next week.

During these same days, not by coincidence, there were 10 foot high waves swamping a cruise ship in the Bangka Straits near Jakarta, a 12 foot high tsunami along coastal Kuala Terengganu on the Malay Peninsula, flooding along coastal Padang on the southern coast of Sumatra, and an 8 foot high wave wiping out a Viet Nam village.

High Waves, Sailing Terminated

December 7, 2011

<http://sindikasi.inilah.com/read/detail/1804879/ombak-tinggi-pelayaran-dihentikan>

Since the last three days, cruise Palembang and Bangka-Bangka-Billiton, intercepted three-meter high waves.

Village Taken by Surprise

December 13, 2011

<http://www.nst.com.my/local/general/village-taken-by-surprise-1.18483>

The whole housing project was flooded and 196 victims from 41 families were evacuated to the village [Kuala Terengganu] community hall. Four-metre-high waves crash through barrier and inundate homes.

Dozens of North Village in Padang Lawas Submerged

December 13, 2011

<http://berita.liputan6.com/read/367160/puluhan-desa-di-padang-lawas>

Hundreds of houses in 20 villages flooded due to overflowing rivers. Water that reaches a height of one meter makes people anxious.

The Wave is "Swallowed up" Fishing Village

December 13, 2011

<http://toancanh.tamnhin.net/doi-song/192089/Song-bien-nuot-chung>

Wave erosion than 70m inland, with waves of about 2.5 m, "swallowing" the whole house.

The Zetas described roiling seas and occasional tsunami during the sinking of the Sunda Plate, and this seems to be what is happening.

ZetaTalk Prediction 12/18/2010: Tsunami and eventual sea level loss are not the same thing. The leading edge of Sumatra and Java will not experience tsunami, though the water rushing inland may clash and boil. If you place a plate in a bathtub, and push it gently down, water will come from all directions onto the plate, but a tsunami wave is not generated. Push that plate in the bathtub again, this time tilting one side. The bathwater pours in strongly into the down side, and when water from the other sides pours in, there is a clash and boil in the center, a rebound toward the upside of the plate which has less elevation loss.
